The health supply chain is often the weakest link in achieving global health-related goals, such as improving maternal health or reducing child mortality. The status of the supply chain workforce in resource constrained countries is in marked contrast to their status in high income environments, where supply chain management is recognized as a key strategic function, instrumental to institutional success.

Background

The People that Deliver (PtD) Initiative is a global partnership of organisations established in 2011, with a strong interest in health supply chain management (SCM), seeking to provide a co-ordinated multi-organisational approach to addressing HR for SCM in the global health area.

PtD Strategic Goals

I. Advocacy for Global Recognition
II. Country Engagement
III. Academic Engagement
IV. Sharing Tools & Evidence

The Five Building Blocks

- Building Block 1: Engaged Stakeholders
- Building Block 2: Optimise Policies and Plans
- Building Block 3: Workforce Development
- Building Block 4: Increase Performance
- Building Block 5: Professionalisation of SCM

PtD Focus Countries

PtD has seven focus countries which were selected after governments of each country indicated an interest in progressing their HR in SCM agenda. The focus countries provide an excellent base for the PtD Initiative to collaborate on materials that not only benefit them, but also other low and middle-income countries desiring to strengthen their health supply chains.

Burkina Faso  Dominican Republic  Ethiopia  Indonesia  Liberia  Mozambique  Namibia

Engage with the People that Deliver Initiative

- Join a PtD working group - e-mail info@peoplethatdeliver.org
- Follow us on Twitter @PplthatDeliver
- Tell us your HR for SCM stories or projects
- Use PtD tools and evidence: http://www.peoplethatdeliver.org/resources

For more information: info@peoplethatdeliver.org or www.peoplethatdeliver.org